"THE EVIL THAT MEN DO."

Hongkong has been, like England, France, and other countries, subjected at various times to well-meant attempts for the removal of the undoubted evils caused by that love of gambling which is so deep-rooted in human nature all over the world. As Romeo Burns remarked, "A man's a man for a' that," and he gambles just the same. It never yet has been found possible to prevent this universal frailty and all the efforts which have temporarily seemed most successful have, after a little while, utterly failed, so that practically the "law soon becomes a dead letter. In England gambling is just as prevalent and just as pernicious in its effects as at Monte Carlo; the manner of the game may be more varied, but equally large amounts are won and lost, equally disastrous are the results to the morals of individuals and to commercial honesty, and equally frequent are the tragedies directly and indirectly caused by wanton indulgence in this fascinating vice.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

We are glad to note from Chinese papers that the copper mines in Yunnan are being worked with great success.

WHEN the Formosa, Capt. T. Hall, left Amoy on the 13th instant the Russian cruiser Mandarin was at anchor there, as also the "Mutual" liner Oak.

THE Victoria Recreation Club intend holding a scratch race on Saturday (27th Inst.), the crews for which will be picked in the Gymnasium at 6 p.m. to-morrow.

THE Post and Money Order Offices will be closed on noon on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the 18th, 19th and 20th Inst. The night box will be left open for posting purposes.

It is stated that Mr. J. T. H. Sample, the Inspector of Buildings, is about to go home, thereby leaving a comfortable berth open which Mr. John Hazelton is, we hear, about to take.

A REGULAR meeting of Perseverance Lodge, No. 1165, E.C., will be held in Freemasons' Hall, Zetland Street, this evening, at 8.30 for 9 o'clock precisely. Visiting brethren are cordially invited.

THE Agents (Messrs. Dodwell, Carrill & Co.) inform us that the R.M.S. Empress of Japan left Vancouver on the afternoon of the 1st Inst. for Yokohama and Hongkong, and due at Yokohama on the 28th.

AT an extraordinary meeting of licensing justices this morning, Messrs. Wise, Porcupine, Sharp Lyall, and Bain refused the application of a Hebrew gentleman named Copil Shapier, for a spirit licence at his coffee shop at 36, Praya Central.

THE Band of the 1st Shropshire L.I. will play the following programme at the Officers' Mess to-morrow evening, commencing at 7.30 p.m.:-

Opening—"William Tell"..... Rosalind..... Selection from "La Traviata"..... "Crown"..... "Little Sadies"..... "Lure"..... "Hark the Merry Drum"..... "Knock"..... "The First Principles".....

THIS afternoon the circus procession was going round the town as usual with its band in full blast, and when nearing the vicinity of certain wharfs, one of the foreign men of war mistook the crowd for some visiting official coming off, as expected. All the big guns were ready loaded for the salutes; somebody pulled the string, and away they went and nobody found out until the bigwigs got on board half an hour later, unslated—and than there was a circus on that ship, you bet!

THE German gunboat Jitts and the French gunboat Inconstant arrived here from Shanghai this morning and saluted the port. Admirals of various descriptions visited each other, and more salutes were fired. By the way, this galloping business is rapidly becoming an intolerable nuisance owing to some of the foreign warships using much larger charges than is necessary. Some of the commanders seem bent on making a "big boom" than the skipper of the other ship, quite regardless of the annoyance, caused by such thoughtless conduct.

AT the Magistracy to-day a cattle-owner, named Teang Han, was charged with having in his possession a diseased bullock, which he did not report but took away for slaughter as food, on February 14th, at Yau-mui-lui. His pleaded that it had been stamped, as satisfactory, but this was disproved. Mr. Ladds, an employee of a rival firm of cattle-owners, stated that the bullock was unfit for food and had died of its disease, and that prisoner must have known it was diseased. On this evidence the cattle-dealer was sentenced to a fine of $20 or six weeks imprisonment.

A NATIVE contemporary says that the "Shanghai Hellen" gave a dinner at Mr. Chang Su-ho's garden some days ago, at which a deputy of the Viceroy of Nanking, named Yu, was one of the principal guests. Our old acquaintance Mr. Yu Sul-wan, whose photograph adorns the gallery of celebrities in the charge-room of the Hongkong Central Police Station, once more in evidence. Deputy Yu, outside that little trouble in the Supreme Court, which was mere foolishness, is not half a bad fellow, and he is certain to feel badly hurt; for he will see all around him that, in spite of the Hon. J. J. Kewswick's advanced philanthropy, in spite of police, in spite of all the forces of innocent virtue, every man in the colony who wants to work up a little cheap excitement will gamble—99 out of 100, or rather 999 out of 1,000, of English, and Deutchers, and Chinese, and Indians, and Yankees—they will gamble just the same. Poor deluded Bishop!

Moral—Have your own way when you can, and when you can't, don't. This time the wicked, bad betting men can, and the good Government can't. So they might just as well own up frankly and come off. The best and fairest and most creditable course would be to repeal the Gambling Ordinance of 1891, already repealed unofficially by the mere fact that people gamble in spite of it, and will gamble more and more as they become more familiar with the law and its carriage-driven. Perhaps only a part of the law will be repealed, so that a white man may gamble and a Chinese may not or vice versa, on Mr. Goowin's famous principle that "though the law has returned many to the wreck."

Our Shanghai morning contemporary publishes the following telegram, dated Chefoo, 9th Feb., 11.30 a.m.—"The Astoria S. S. has disappeared with the salvo crew on board. Eight Chinese were frozen to death in the bilboard on Sunday night." The Astoria S. S. left Shanghai for the south of the steamer Marie, near Chefoo, on the 26th of January. It appears that in the gale on Sunday night the engine, who was on the Marie, was unable to get back, and the Astoria S. S. sent her lifeboat for him. It was captured, and eight or nine Chinese were drowned. The Astoria S. S. then put to sea, and had not arrived at Chefoo up to yesterday morning. Later in the afternoon news was received that the bad returned many to the wreck."

MESSRS. DODWELL, CARRILL & CO. courteously inform us that the steamship Moray, from Glasgow and Liverpool, left Probolinggo on the 16th instant, and is due here on or about the 27th.

W. NO. 1162, of 18 Queen's Road West, was charged in the Police Court to pay for neglecting to report a case of small-pox in his house. Mr. McCallum, Sanitary Superintendent, stated that on February 12th he received notice from the police that there was a case of small-pox in the ground floor of prisoner's house. Three hours afterwards he received notice from the Registrar-General that the patient had died and the body was removed to the mortuary. Dr. Marquis certified that he examined the body and was of opinion that death resulted from small-pox which must have been recognisable six days before death. Prisoner said he reported the

ALLEGED BRUTALITY ON A BRITISH STEAMER.

It is now just ten days since we published a full report of the adventures of the British steamer Zambesi, the legal proceedings at Victoria, B.C., the claim of $250,000 for saving the whaleback steamer Charles W. Wetmore, and the compliment paid to Captain Edwards by the keeper of the life-saving station at Fort Canby, who saw the Wetmore rescued from the breakers by the Zambesi. At that time Captain Edwards was written up in the Yankee papers, and he is probably one of the best known skippers on the Pacific coast. But Captain Edwards is evidently a very ambitious gentleman, and bent on making himself famous all the world over, by an act of considerable daring he has succeeded in getting his name written in the annals of this colony, where it will probably remain for ever and ever. This fact may come as a surprise to the gallant skipper in question, for he could scarcely have dreamt of it prior to his departure for Kobe early on the morning of the 10th instant, but in view of the grave breach of the law which his alleged brutal conduct towards two unfortunate Japanese stowaways entails, he should not be greatly surprised after all seeing that his experience both as a sailor and a society man is probably as extensive as that of any member of his profession in the Far East. There is an old and true saying that "your sins will always find you out," and this is just what has come to pass in respect to "Swagger George," as this immaculate British "tar" is dubbed by those who remember him in his palmy days as the gay and festive chief officer of the Japanese mail steamer Tokio Maru. But enough of vague reflections; let us get down to what are stated to be hard facts.

The "Upton" line steamer Zambesi, Capt. George J. Edwards, arrived here from Portland, Oregon, via Kobe, on the 4th instant with 31 Chinese passengers and two Japanese stowaways. The Captain never reported the presence of the stowaways to the Harbour-master or the Police, but, taking the law into his own hands, loaded them with chains and locked them up in a small cabin. They were made to work hard all day, and were then cast into the ship's prison at night. Buffeted about, hardly fed, and made to work hard, the men asked to be handed over to their Consul, but a deaf ear was turned to their petition, and at last, growing desperate under their ill-treatment, they broke their manacles, escaped out of their prison, and jumped overboard just as the Zambesi got under way for Kobe. One of the victims, Kotchi Yoneza, was rescued from a watery grave by the watchman of the steamer Holstein, but the other, Nakamura Manmichi, had probably been drowned. His body, however, has not been found, and even if it does come to the surface and the police get hold of it, a corpse can't give evidence, so all the authoritatives have to go upon the story of the surviving victim until the Zambesi returns to Hongkong, and the genial and fashionable Commander has to face the music in the Marine Magistrate's Court.

It may be added that, when Kotchi Yoneza was taken out of the water, portions of a couple of steel handcuffs were found dangling from his wrists, in addition to a heavy iron fetter round one of his ankles, which would appear to indicate that his story is substantially correct.

What possessed Captain Edwards to act in such an extraordinary manner towards the two Japanese stowaways instead of handing them over to the police, we know not, but what we do know is that the Hongkong authorities and the Japanese Consul are on the war-path and there is every prospect of the gallant captain being hauled over red-hot coals. It is difficult to say what Captain Edwards will elect to do. Meanwhile the surviving victim, who was picked up out of the water almost at his last gasp, is now serving seven days' imprisonment for being in the Colony "without visible means of support."

SHANSI NOTES.

December 31st, 1891.

There is a report here to the effect that a mob of natives recently attacked the Foreign Settlement at Shanghai, destroying upwards of twenty buildings. It is reported, also, that one hundred children have disappeared from the Province of Canton during the year; and of course, it is believed that they were made away with by foreigners. A friendly Chinese tells me that latter sort of talk is always abundant and is generally believed.

With reference to taking precautions for personal safety, I do not hear that anything is being done. I learn from the valuable columns of the North-China Herald that the foreigners in the south (of China) have combined for self-defence, but it is not known that anything of that kind will be attempted here; chiefly because the majority of the foreigners in this province believe—so it is said—in non-resistance. Still if it came to the point of submitting to being calmly killed simply because one is a foreigner, or of defending one's family, it is highly probable that some among us would see what could be done in the latter case. There are said to be two ex-soldiers in our midst. One of them was formerly a non-commissioned officer in the Royal Dragoons. The other fought in the American civil war under Sherman. It is believed that the latter would again shoulder arms and march to the coast or anywhere else in order to protect his family or to help save his country.

There is a total foreign population of about one hundred persons in this province, comprising missionaries and their families. Three adults and three children have died within the year which ends to-night. It is almost a wonder that so few missionaries are carried off by fatal diseases, in view of the fact that such diseases are always more or less common among the Chinese. It is certainly to the credit of the Chinese, too, that so many missionaries, most of them with a very imperfect knowledge of the language, are allowed to go freely about the province without receiving any personal injury.

It is reported that the provincial head-quarters of the C. I. Mission are to be transferred from Taiyuan Fu, the capital of the province, to Pingyao Hsien. The latter city is an important banking centre.

On Christmas Eve, a Christmas tree entertainment was held at Taifu for the benefit of the boys attending the day school there. Some little presents sent by friends in America were distributed among the boys. The little ones sang some suitable hymns, which they had learned for the occasion. One or two native Christians gave short addresses, and all appeared to appreciate the advent of another Christmas. There is reason to believe that the school has gained the respect of many of the citizens. There is a charge of five hundred full cash a month for each pupil, the parents furnishing clothes and native books. Foreign books and food, as well as fuel and room, are furnished by the mission. There are twenty boys in this year—all that can be accommodated. Some time ago the pupils, of their own accord, raised enough money among themselves to pay the school fees of one who had formerly attended school but was of late kept from doing so because his friends could not pay the school fee. This incident may serve to show that these boys appreciate the advantages which the school offers them to offer.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Oil of peppermint in water, diluted even to one part in one million, will kill cockroaches in an hour.

Stains may be removed from the hands by washing them in a small quantity of oil of vitrol and cold water, without soap.

A small box filled with lime and placed on the shelf in a pantry or closet will absorb dampness and keep the air in the closet dry and sweet.

Ottomans on a sofa, whether covered with cloth, damask, or chintz, will look much better for being cleaned occasionally with bran and flannel.

Oilcloth should never have soap upon them as the lye will destroy the colour and the finish. They are greatly benefited and last much longer if this coat of varnish is applied once a year.

To brighten the inside of a coffee or teapot, fill with water, add a small piece of soap, and let sit about forty-five minutes.

Acid dropped on the clothing can be neutralised by the use of ammonia. If the cloth is not too badly burnt, the colour may be restored with chrome alum.

Kerosene oil will make tin tea kettles as bright as new. Saturate a woollen rag and rub with it. It will also remove stains and clean varnished furniture.

A good way to clean Japanese wares is to wash them with a sponge dipped in clean cold water.

LONGEVITY AND FAME.

wipe it dry and polish it with dry flour well rubbed with a soft cloth.

To clean brass immerse it several times in sour milk or whey. This will brighten it without scouring. It may then be scoured with a woolen cloth dipped in ashes.

If those people who have had dirty work to do will go to work and thoroughly cleanse themselves, and put on clean clothing throughout, they will find themselves 20 per cent more rested and refreshed, than if they had remained still and kept on their soiled garments. Let everybody try this plan.

Contrary to the generally accepted belief, growing flowers in bedrooms is beneficial rather than hurtful. It has been stated on scientific authority that specimens of air taken from a greenhouse containing good plants contained less carbonic acid than the open air.

A hat that has become too stale for the table may be "freshened" by wrapping it in a clean cloth and dipping it in boiling water for thirty seconds. Then remove the cloth, and bake the hat for ten minutes in a slow oven. Stale breakfast rolls may be treated in the same way.

A man who has been for twenty years a heavy drinker killed his craving, and cured himself with this—he put half an ounce of ground quassia in a pint of good vinegar, let it stand for twelve hours in a bottle, and took a teaspoonful of the solution in water every time the craving came upon him.

In blacking a stove, wash off all grease spots with soap suds, and if there are any rough rusty places, or spots where something has burned on the stove, rub with a piece of sandpaper. Mix the blacklead to the consistency of cream with water or vinegar. Apply this to the stove when cool, and when nearly dry rub it with a stiff brush until it shines. Black the oven inside and out. If stoves are blackleaded while they are hot, it burns on and will not take a nice polish.

Great need is often felt of a good, reliable disinfectant in such quantities that the amount of the purchase money precludes its use. An ounce of permanganate of potash, which may be obtained of any druggist, will make a bucketful of as good a deodoriser and disinfectant as can be obtained. It only needs to be dissolved in water, and can be kept in crystals until it is needed. This solution is sold in bottles at a large price in England, under a registered name, and has an enviable and well-merited reputation.

When perspiration is oily, there is an unwholesome action of the minute oil glands of the skin. Wash in water in which a little borax has been dissolved, alternating this with a bath of water and a little tartaric acid. Frequent perspiration arises from a morbid condition of the pores and glands, more especially of the feet, groin, and armpits. Sponge the parts with a diluted solution of permanganate of potash, or powdering with finely pulverised salicylic acid is an effective remedy. Twenty grains of sulphate of bismuth dissolved in a quart of water applied to the body with a sponge, will remove the odour.

In case of a snakebite, tie a string or ligature hard around the injured limb and above the bitten place. Suck the wound so as to extract the poison, but be careful to see that the person who does this has no open sore in his mouth. Wash with warm water and apply such caustics as carbolic acid or concentrated liquor of ammonia. Give five to ten grains of carbonate of ammonia in water every hour, and stimulate the patient with whisky or brandy. Rub the limbs with pieces of flannel dipped in hot whisky or diluted alcohol. Medical attendance should be secured as soon as possible. It is always safe to give a vigorous cathartic at once.

To relieve anyone choked by a bone or other substance sticking in the throat, guillotin or windpipe, thrust your fingers deep down into the throat and draw out the foreign body. The action of the muscles caused by your touching the back of the throat will help to throw forth the obstruction. If, however, you cannot reach it in this way, bend a hairpin into a hook and try to grasp it. A few quick blows with the open hand between the shoulders will sometimes effect a dislodgement. Blowing forcibly into the ear sometimes excites powerful reflex action, during which the foreign body is expelled. Try, also, quickly compressing the clavus between both hands. Turn a child heels up and give it several blows upon the back.

Sometimes, when diphtheria was rapping in England, a Dr. Field cured every patient that he treated, without exception, while the patients of others were dying on all sides. All that he took with him on his visits were flowers of sulphur and a quill. He put a teaspoonful of flowers of sulphur into a wineglass of water, and stirred it with his finger instead of a spoon, as the sulphur does not readily amalgamate with water. When the sulphur was well mixed, he gave it as a gargle, and in ten minutes the patient was out of danger. Brimstone kills every species of fungus a man, hen, and plant in a few minutes. In extreme cases, in which he had been called just in the nick of time, when the fungus was too nearly closing to allow the gargling, he blew the sulphur through a quill into the throat. After the fungus had shrunk to allow of it, he gave the gargle. The sulphur may also be inhaled by putting it on a live coal on a shovel.

The following hints for the prevention of sunstroke are given by Dr. Edwin C. Mann, of New York City, in an article upon this subject in one of the medical journals: "To avoid sunstroke, exercise in excessively hot weather should be very moderate; the clothing should be thin and loose, and an abundance of cold water should be drunk. Women and soldiers should understand that as soon as they cease to perspire, walk or working in the hot sun, they are in danger of sunstroke, and they should immediately drink water freely and copiously to afford matter for cutaneous transpiration; keep the skin and clothing wet with water. Impending sunstroke may often be averted off by these simple measures. Besides the cessation of perspiration, the pupils are apt to be contracted, and there is a frequency of micturition. If there is marked exhaustion with a weak pulse, resulting from the cold water application, we should administer stimulants. The free use of water, however, both externally and internally, by those exposed to the direct rays of the sun is the best prophylactic against sunstroke, and labourers and soldiers and others who adopt this measure, washing their hands and faces as well as drinking copiously of water, every time they come within reach of it, will generally enjoy perfect immunity from sunstroke. Straw hats should be worn, ventilated at the top, and the crown of the hat filled with green leaves or wet sponge. It is better to wear thin flannel shirts in order not to check perspiration. We may expose ourselves for a long time in the hot sun and work or sleep in a heated room, and enjoy perfect immunity from sunstroke, if we keep our skin and clothing wet with water."

If the sufferers from Consumption, Scrofula and General Debility will try Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, they will find immediate relief and a permanent benefit. The Medical Profession in the various countries of the world, universally, declare it a remedy of the greatest value, and as it is very palatable it can be readily taken by the most sensitive stomach, and will never fail to give relief and comfort to the sufferer. An Agent can supply it. A. S. Watson & Co., Limited agents in Hongkong and China. [167]

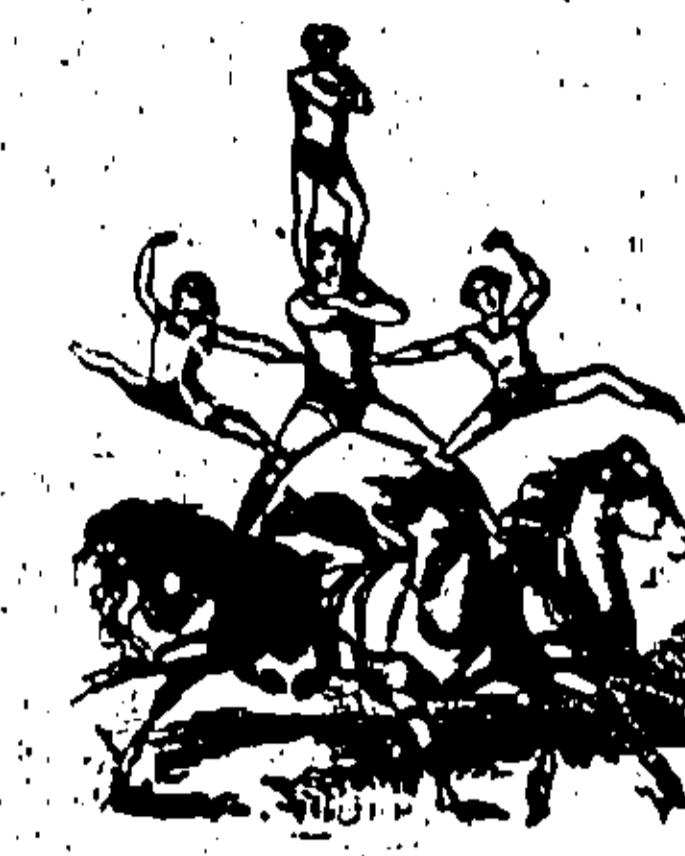

If all generals had died at Alexander's age, all poets at Marlowe's, all statesmen at Pitt's, all philosophers at Spinoza's, how many men would have maintained reputational Hannibal, indeed, was only twenty-nine when he invaded Italy, and twenty-two when he won Rosci, and Napoleon, according to the alleged date of his birth, twenty-seven (more probably twenty-nine) when he started on his Italian campaign; but Caesar was forty-five when he commenced the conquest of Gaul, Gustavus Adolphus thirty-seven when he defeated Tilly at Leipsic, and Cromwell forty-five when he gained Marston Moor. Frederic II, though only twenty-eight on overrunning Silesia, was forty-three when he embarked in the Seven Years' War. Washington was forty-three on his appointment to the command of the army. Wellington, had he died at thirty-one, would have been known merely as a promising Indian Staff Officer, Keats, dying at twenty-five, Shelley at thirty, Byron at thirty-six had achieved fame; but these are brilliant exceptions of precocity. Had Goethe been as short-lived as Marlowe, he simply would have been the author of "Götz von Berlichingen" and "Werther" works which cannot compare with those of the men just named. Even Shakespeare, early as he began to write, would not, had he died young, have beenqueathed us Othello, Hamlet, Macbeth or King Lear, but, merely his minor plays, some of them remodeled rather than original works. Spencer was thirty-seven when he began publishing the "Faerie Queen." Milton was fifty-two when he set himself to writing "Paradise Lost." Dante was thirty-seven when banished from Florence, and he had scarcely commenced his great poem "Virgil" was thirty-four when he began the "Georgics" and forty-four when he began the "Inferno." Tennyson, though only twenty-one on his first appearance in print, was forty-one on the publication of "In Memoriam," but Browning, at thirty had issued examples of nearly all his varied work, ranging from "Pauline" to some of his most famous dramatic lyrics, and including "Poppe Passes." Schiller, it is true, produced "Die Braut" the work of servile youth, at twenty-two, but he was forty when he commenced with "Wallenstein"; his series of masterpieces, Burns, again, was famous at twenty-seven, but Scott was thirty-seven when "Marmion" appeared, and Wardsworth was forty-four when "The Excursion" saw the light, though it may have been years in preparation. Statesmanship and youth cannot be expected to go together. Pitt, indeed, was Prime Minister at twenty-four, Bulwer was Elizabeth's Minister at thirty-eight, and Walpole was Premier at the Racercourse, on SUNDAY next.
